Speakers ranging from former Director General of Police, HJ Dora, who delivered the keynote address, to men of eminence like SM Arif and Mir Khasim Ali (who all are seen in the picture), urged the government to also rope in sports NGOs like SCF, and other such organisations that are rendering yeomen service for the downtrodden, to spread the initiative's reach and help scout for grass-root talent. Foundation Secretary K Sai Baba moderated the seminar that was graced by a distinguished gathering of people from various walks of life

TAKING STOCK OF SPORTS IN SYLLABUS

A thought-provoking seminar on 'Reducing the syllabus to promote sports-Is it a reality?' organised at Hotel Taj Banjara by Hyderabad-based Sports Coaching Foundation (SCF) evoked mixed response from a gathering of sports promoters and administrators. Most came up with ways and means to make the proposal more active although there was large-scale appreciation for the Centre's holistic approach to integrate sports and academics as part of its New India Mission. Corporator Ayesha Rubina is seen delivering the keynote address. Administrators and coaches, including Irfan, Ram Reddy, Srnivasa, Shoukath and Raju attended. The entire event was coordinated by SCF founder-Secretary K Saibaba

50% of School Syllabus to be cut to promote sports

NEW DELHI: In a bid to promote sports in the country, Union Minister Rajyavardhan Rathore said on Monday that a games period will be made mandatory in schools after reducing the syllabus by 50% by next year.

SHRI. RATHORE

"We have come to a stage where sports is not a part of education: It is education. The ministry of education is ensuring that by 2019, the syllabus in schools is reduced by 50% and there will be a sports period on a regular basis," Rathore said. Rathore said the ministry is planning several things to make sports more relevant.

"We are also ensuring that the SAI (Sports Authority of India) reduces its manpower by 50% by 2022 so that it can cater to sports and it has a team body and money is spent on sports.

"This year, we will have 20 specialised sports schools and the government of India will pump about Rs 7-10 crore each. The idea is to have a very pointed approach so that each school will have only two or three main sports. They will be very focussed," he said.

GOVERNMENT TO REDUCE NCERT SYLLABUS: STUDENTS ARE OVERBURDENED, NO NEED TO TEACH THEM EVERYTHING, SAYS HRD MINISTER

"There is a huge load of books and information, and students have no time. There is no time for physical education, value education, and life skills." So, we decided to half the portion (syllabus). There is no need to teach them everything. Students should learn principles and rest of the knowledge they can gain later," Javadekar said.

The HRD Ministry has received 37,000 suggestions from parents, teachers, and educationists regarding the government's decision to lessen the burden of books, he said at an event marking the 10th foundation day of the Foundation for Restoration of National Values (FRNV) here. While making the announcement on 2 June, Javadekar had said the NCERT syllabus was so "cramped" that the government had decided to reduce it by half. The minister said values cannot be inculcated among children unless they are provided to them at home and also suggested training for parents in this regard. He lauded FRNV's initiative to integrate value education in the school system in India and assured that the HRD Ministry will work with it as a "partner". FRNV chaired by 'Metro Man' E Sreedharan was founded in 2008. On the occasion, Sreedharan said value education is not being taught at state-run schools and asked the government to take steps for this. "Value education is the primary step needed by the country. Emphasis on it in government schools is not sufficient. If government schools start it, other schools will also be encouraged to do so," he said.
